SCENES OF HISTORIC RACE

Anthropologists Intensely Interested in Discovery of Indian Skeletons in California.

New indications that California was once inhabited by a race of gigantic Indians was furnished when seven diggers on Perry and Howard streets, in the heart of the business district of Martinez, Cal., uncovered an Indian burial ground with skeletons measuring more than seven feet.

Several skulls and one well-preserved skeleton are to be given over to the investigators of the anthropology department of the University of California. The skulls and skeletons are declared to be of highly important and scientific value.

Discovery of the burial ground has revived an old Indian legend that an immense treasure of gold nuggets was interred with a body of a chief of the ancient tribe of the giant Indians. So convinced are the residents in the truth of this legend that great crowds have thronged around the seven diggers, largely hampering their activities, and more than a score of persons have applied to the local authorities for positions on the city's sewer-digging crew.

According to the ancient Indian legend, the vast gold treasure was buried in close proximity to where the Louis were excavated.

Eight years ago William Alfman, curator of the museum in Golden Gate park, San Francisco, declared that skeletons unearthed near Concord were the most valuable contributions to the scientific investigations of the state's prehistoric Indians.

Mrs. SELCHERT'S DAUGHTER

Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

HORICON, Wis.—"My young daughter had been troubled for several months with backache and a bad feeling in her stomach. When she went to the table to eat she did not want anything, while before she was so hungry she could hardly wait for her dinner. The doctors gave her medicine but it did not help much. One day I was reading a little book of mine which was left on my porch and it reminded me that when I was a young girl I took several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So she went to the drug store and got a bottle and after the second one she could eat and has not had backache since. In all she took six bottles of it. She goes to school and on Saturdays helps with the housework. She is now in perfect health again and we recommend you to use it. You have my permission to publish this letter as a testimonial for the Vegetable Compound,"—Mrs. FRANK SELCHERT, 150 Larabee St., Horicon, Wis.

Mother's all over the country have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to be a most reliable remedy for such conditions.

FIND SHELLS CENTURIES OLD

Belief That Relics Unearthed by Workmen in Oregon Were Used as Ornaments by Indians.

Sea shells about six inches across were unearthed by workmen recently at Big Eddy, near The Dalles, Ore., lying at the heads of Indian skeletons. They were decorated and crumpled when touched. These shells showed indications of having been used as ear ornaments. They are of the species of shell-fish commonly called "volutes" on the Atlantic coast, according to persons who have observed them, and do not grow to the size of those found on the Pacific coast.

Wonderfully perfect spear and arrowheads, made of obsidian, a rock found no nearer than California, also were unearthed. All of the chipping on the arrow-heads found appeared to be much finer than later Indian work, local amateur collectors declared.

The shells found by highway workers at Big Eddy are an accumulation of centuries, in the opinion of Dr. L. Crites, city reporter, who has lived in The Dalles for more than 60 years. He points out that in the hills back of Big Eddy trails worn in the rock may be seen evidence of the activities of Indians who used these trails for hundreds of years. Mr. Gates says that at Big Eddy the Indians had flour-salmon fishing when at any other place along the river and here been making the trip to that place annually probably ever since salmon began running up the Columbia.

Photography 100 Years Old.

This is the centenary of photography. So rapidly does the world progress, so迅速 a pace our civilization has become the taking of pictures, that it is difficult to realize that the art was unknown when Monroe first entered the White House.

Yet in 1820 Niepce, first of all men, succeeded in producing what might be called a photograph, a rude impression on a silver plate rendered sensitive by a layer of asphaltum saturated with oil of lavender.

And though this discovery awakened world-wide interest at the time, this method could not be put into general use, and not until 1839 did Daguerre succeed in producing the first practical photograph. After that date the art advanced rapidly, so rapidly, in fact, that before 1850 the daguerreotype was common in every village, in every family. From the silver plates of Niepce to this instant picture of today is a long step, a step which but illustrates the rapidity with which modern civilization advances.

It Did Come Suddenly.

An unusually interesting communication was received by a New York life insurance company from the Ohio-MetLife-Dover company of Cleveland. A letter, pointing out the advantages of insurance, was mailed to Mr. Dahlstrom on November 10, 1920.

A part of this letter read as follows:

"Have you ever thought that your turn may come suddenly? Suppose it did?" The answer to this suppose question was written by some unknown person, as follows: "It did. He's dead. Returning letter and postcard, don't forward. Keeping silent. Can't think."

HAD TERRIBLE COUGH AND NIGHT SWEATS

Cough About Three Days and Sleeps Well, and Gained 12 Pounds.

In December, 1920, I had a cough, and my physician ordered me to change climate immediately. I went to San Antonio, Texas, and entered a sanatorium. Left there and came to Oklahoma City in October, 1921. Had appetite, could not sleep, and night sweats and was losing from 10 to 15 pounds a week. Also had a fever. The doctor here was unable to get me to eat.

Relatives urged me to try Miles' Emulsion. I took it and began to improve slowly at first, but steadily. My weight increased 12 pounds. I have continued to take it and now am able to eat again. I can sit here in silence and work. I am working at my trade again.

POOR WOMAN MAKES SACRIFICE

For years I have suffered from indigestion and severe bleeding with gas, till my money had gone for doctors and medicine which did me no good.

I had lost all faith in medicine and as I have to work hard for the few dollars I earn, was afraid to risk any more money. A year ago my neighbor told me to try Mrs. M. W. Remedy's. I have found it to be the best medicine in the world and am glad I made the sacrifice. It is a simple and safe preparation that removes the cause that gives us the intestinal tract and all the inflammation which causes practically all stomach and intestinal ailments including appendicitis. One dose will cover a few dollars. I am a Clarke and druggist everywhere—Ad.

You probably heard of this well known name of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever tried it? When do you ever hear of thousands of families the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it? It is simple and cheap, but the fact is it is a permanent place in your home.

Take a pint bottle pour 2½ ounces of honey, then add plain granulated sugar, stir to kill up the mint. If desired add a few drops of oil of cinnamon or a cupful of sugar essence of cloves.

It is as good, if not better, than any remedy that you could buy ready made for the price.

It is very quickly absorbed, especially in 24 hours or less. It is a great strengthener, restorer, and tonic. It is a perfect heart medicine and the most mild diuretic in the world. It is the best heart tonic.

It is a highly concentrated compound of pure Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest aches.

To avoid disappointment, get your directions for 2½ cups of Peppermint tea, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Piney Co., St. Wayne, Ind.

No jockey can ride in France unless he is at least thirteen years of age and the application for his license must be accompanied by a copy of his birth certificate. This does not apply to jockeys coming over from England or Ireland as it is specially stipulated in the first clause of rule 78 that jockeys holding a license from the English Jockey Club are qualified to ride in France. THE PIRATE.

A SLAVE OF VENGEANCE is the greatest vehicle for Pitmead Predict. Like the screen greatest emotional series is being shown today. The story opens showing Pauline Leclerc the Iris Bellamy is not a slave girl of the upper strata of life who is a victim of the strange will of her late deceased husband which provided that she shall sacrifice his entire fortune should she marry again. She is besieged by admirers and at last falls prey to the crafty Leclerc of a wealthy man of affairs with the result that her social prestige is swept away and she is hurled into the abyss of wasted lives where her former friends can only visit her at the risk of their own reputations. Strayed upon the race track of modern conventions Iris defies the rules of modern society and fights for right and for love. Never for a moment does she lose those qualities we love best in woman, and never for a moment does she resort to anything which borders in the least upon vulgarity or coarseness but through it all she retains those sterling qualities which make one pity and love her. Although the story deals with the qualities of the character of Iris Bellamy it is that of a woman of fine exquisite emotions and feelings, whose experiences only make her the more attractive.

Some Hand Had Thrust a Small Roll of Paper

frontier of death his first thought was to hide his evidence where Cranston could not find it when he searched the body, but where later it might be found by the detectives that were sure to come. It was the old creed of a life for a life. He wanted his evidence to be preserved—not that right should be wronged, but so that Cranston would be prosecuted and convicted and made to suffer. His hatred of Cranston had made him turn State's evidence in the first place had been carried with him down into death.

As Dan stood wondering, he thought he heard a twig crack on the trail behind him and he wondered what for creature was still lingering on the ridges at the eve of the snows.

* * * * *

The snow began to fall in earnest at midnight—great white flakes that almost in an instant covered the leaves. It was the real beginning of winter, and all living creatures knew it. The wolf pack sang to it from the ridge—a wild and plaintive song that made Bert Cranston sleeping in a lean-to on the Unquque side of the Divide swear and shudder in his sleep. But he didn't really awaken until Jim Gibbs one of his gang, returned from his secret mission.

They wasted no words. Bert fumbled aside the blankets, lighted a candle and placed it out of the reach of the blist wind. His face looked swarthy and deep lined in its light.

"Well?" he demanded. "What did you find?"

"Nothing," Jim Gibbs answered gutturally. "If you ask me what I found out I might have somethin' to answer."

"Then—" and Bert, after the manner of his kind, breathed an oath. "What did you find out?"

His tone, except for an added note of savagery, remained the same. Yet his heart was thumping a great deal louder than he liked to have it. Realizing that the snows were at hand, he had sent Gibbs for a last search of the body, to find and recover the evidence that Eldred had against him and which had not been revealed either on Eldred's person or in his cabin. He had become increasingly apprehensive about those letters he had written Eldred and certain other documents that had been in his possession. He didn't understand why they hadn't turned up. And now the snows had started and Jim Gibbs had returned empty-handed but evidently not empty minded.

He found that the body had been uncovered—and men are already searching for clues. And moreover—I think he'd found them." He paused, weighing the effect of his words. His eyes glittered with cunning. But then he was wondering whether the time had arrived to leave the ship. He had no intention of continuing to give his services to a man with a rope around his neck about him. And Cranston knew this fact, based him as he hated the buzzard that would claim him in the end and tried to hide his

That Originating at Poplar Grove Would Eventually Affect Them.

HILLCREST MUCH WORRIED

That Section Will Be First to Fall Victims of Onward Sweep of Underground Demolition; State Road and Trolley Line in Immediate Danger.

When it was reported last week that he state road between Connellsville and Poplar Grove would be closed within 30 days many residents of the city for the first time became really concerned in the mine fire burning at that point. The fire is eating toward the road and while it was denied by District Engineer Dimensions of Washington that any action toward closing the highway has yet been taken, he intimated this would inevitably be the result unless some steps were taken to stop the fire.

Recently reports of fires at the Bureau of Mines and State Highway Department were hard to overlook. But on the time of the prediction much concern over the fire was exhibited.

The State road which has been in existence for a number of years is supported in a number of places which could quickly become detached if the fire got to them. It is estimated that the fire is now only about 100 feet from the Western Railways company's tracks which are supported in the same manner as is the road. A resident following the fire will reach the tracks in a minute. The district engineer said he did not believe the road would end in flames in such a short time although he did not say at the time more than a month or two.

Poplar Grove and Hillcrest residents are very much opposed to the closing of the new road but they pointed out to the residents of Connellsville what effect the fire would have on their property values here. The fire is intended in that direction now and if halted it is said the flames will set out the coal in the entire north section of this city and burn hundreds of houses to the West Side. This will result in thousands of dollars loss to property holders and be a complete ruin of those portions of the city.

No definite move towards halting the fire has been begun. Eng. Mac. M. Sizemore said the Highway Department was to go to the head and department was to go to the head and the situation was quickly relieved when New Worth restored his health.
